

Client Name: The Victorian Bar – Part of the Australian Barrister Association

Industry: A private, voluntary, self-funded, non-profit professional association of barristers who practise in Victoria.

Consultant: Allan Eddy

The Brief: The Victorian Bar's approached Save Time Visuals to recommend an elegant, professional looking and economical audio visual solution for their boardroom. The boardroom had a small TV in the side-cupboard, a portable projector with a tripod manual screen used for presentation with cables running along the floor. The screen is too cumbersome, the set-up time for presentation is too long and cable running across the room is a potential hazard for trips and falls.

The Solution: The boardroom was installed with a widescreen ceiling mounted projector and a motorised screen fitted in an interfit box mounted within the ceiling cavity. Six flush mount speakers coupled with an amplifier were also installed for maximum effect and amplified sound with cabling running to a wall plate for easy set-up.

The Result: The Victorian Bar's boardroom is now more user-friendly. To set-up any presentation, all they need is a click of a button and cables are being neatly hidden away which complies with the OH&S standard. The projection screen is out of sight when not in use and will automatically roll down quietly from the ceiling at the push of a button when required which creates a professional look. The full HD projector are easy to use and gives crystal clear images and the audio system deliver professional sound and messages clearly across the conference room.
